

Funding the Duffield Sports Center and the Academy's Master Plan

As is the case for all independent schools, the Army and Navy Academy must pay for the Duffield Sports Center and The Master Plan through the generous, philanthropic support of our school wide community. Patrons, past patrons, alumni, employees and other friends of the Academy will, by their generosity, help the Academy to move forward and build out the Master Plan.

Mess Hall

The Capital Campaign Committee to raise money for the Duffield Sports Center and the Master Plan has first approached the Academy's Board of Trustees and a small number of individuals within the school-wide community. That process is still ongoing. So far, approximately 60 percent of the estimated project cost for the Duffield Sports Center has been pledged by those who have already been contacted.

Today, the Academy's fund raising efforts are in full force with the expansion of the public phase of the capital campaign. The goal of the public phase is to broaden our base of potential donors with the view to help raise the remainder of the funds necessary to pay for the entire project with contributed funds. This will be beneficial by enabling the Academy to preserve its cash reserves and keep them available to address future needs.

Ways of Giving

The Board of Trustee's Capital Campaign Committee is currently seeking gifts in the form of direct contributions, multi-year pledges and other gifts such as publicly traded securities or closely held stock, real and personal property (gifts-in-kind), life insurance policies or from any regularly recognized charitable gift planning vehicle such as a Charitable Remainder Trust, other trust or annuity. Your support brings us closer to our goal. Every gift is tax-deductible.
